

You're always creating.

A series of orange and yellow paint splashes and drips, some solid and some faded, scattered across the upper half of the page.

Even now.
Even when it feels like you're not.
Even when it feels like life
is happening to you.

Each thought, each feeling, each hushed belief
beneath the surface...
these aren't idle.

They're CREATIVE.

A large, dynamic pink paint splash with several smaller droplets trailing off to the right, located in the lower half of the page.

They direct your arrangement of the "real..." mold your preferences and aversions...
your belief in what's possible...

They inform the world you walk through,
and the one you carry inside.